SNOQUALMIE, WA – Snoqualmie Valley Health (SVH) is celebrating three wins at the 2026 Best of the Snoqualmie Valley Awards, recognizing two healthcare providers and its Physical Therapy team for their outstanding care and service to the community.

The awards were presented October 16 at Snoqualmie Casino & Hotel.

Two of SVH's family medicine nurse practitioners were recognized with top honors. Kaylin Reeve, DNP, ARNP, was named Best Doctor, while Shantal Postiglione, DNP, ARNP, was named Best Nurse. SVH's Physical Therapy team also earned the award for Best Physical Therapy.

The recognition reflects the trust and connections SVH's providers and staff build with patients and families throughout the Valley. Whether helping patients manage their health, navigate challenges or return to the activities they love, these teams demonstrate SVH's commitment to compassionate, personalized care close to home.

SVH also recognizes Roxanne Hicks, MD, a nominee for Best Doctor, and Alicia Beecroft, ARNP, a nominee for Best Nurse. Their nominations further highlight the dedication and excellence of SVH's care team.

SVH extends its thanks to the community members who nominated and voted for its providers and Physical Therapy team and congratulates all of this year's winners and nominees.
